Joy Tong

Joy Tong founded All Special Kids (ASK), Geneva Switzerland in 2003, in response to the lack of support for Anglophone parents of children with special needs. However, Joy's experience and passion for supporting the socially vulnerable and those with special needs has been a life-long labour of love.

The story of ASK - as well as Joy's own story - is one of individuals coming together and collectively overcoming significant challenges. A native of Burma, Joy immigrated to the US as a refugee in 1979 with her parents, two brothers and four sisters. For over two decades in the US, Joy and her family lived out the American dream. Joy dedicated herself to the underprivileged, applying her law degree and schooling to co-found Burmese Women of New York, an advocacy group for the Burmese immigrant victims of domestic violence, families struggling with HIV/AIDS, and those in need of assistance within the New York City school system. In addition, until she moved to Switzerland, Joy was the primary caregiver for her sister Linda, who has special needs and severe learning difficulties.

In 1992, Joy gave birth to a daughter, Allegra, who was born with overall low muscle tone and significant special needs. Joy then embarked upon a long journey of learning and research. In 2001, Joy followed her husband to Switzerland where she struggled to find the appropriate support services for Allegra. She began to network with other parents to share information and experiences and found that there were a number of parents in Geneva experiencing similar struggles; searching for specialists and seeking support services for their children.

By 2003, Joy, together with five parents, founded Anglophone Special Kids, which was a prelude to what is known today as All Special Kids (ASK). While the road to building any organization is never smooth, Joy has been the constant driving force behind ASK, creating solutions to accommodate a continually changing set of needs to a transient population. Today, ASK's mission has expanded beyond the initial support for children to include their families, specialists, educators and schools across Switzerland and beyond. For nearly a decade, Joy has continued to serve in a volunteer capacity. When asked her motivation for such a tremendous commitment, Joy says simply, Allegra and those children just like her.

This year, ASK is delighted to welcome the fund-raising efforts of 100 Women in Hedge Funds, whose members are a dedicated group of industry professionals, who wish to make a difference for children with special needs across Switzerland. Together ASK hopes to carry on our mission of creating and empowering a strong network of families, professionals, and institutions to work together across borders, cultural and language groups, to better serve and improve the educational needs of all children and to bring about permanent change in our societies.

Julien Laurence

Julien Laurence is a songwriter, composer and singer born in Switzerland.

Self-taught, Julien learnt at a very young age to play piano, guitar and sing. Julien has travelled extensively throughout the world avidly meeting people and assimilating their respective cultures and finding himself through these experiences. "I feel like a citizen of the world and a nomad....someone who finds himself and eclectic definition of music. Music is for me the most intimate way of expressing feelings; music is a language, the language of emotions. What's important is the sincerity and the authenticity that's put into doing the work."

Julien is both a live musician and a studio artist; he lives his life as a musician to the fullest. A very likeable person with a voice that fosters strong emotions, his talent has a powerful force of seduction on his audience.

He produced his first album himself in 1995 with his trio "Wild Mango" with whom he played at numerous music festivals, including Paleo, Montreux Jazz Festival, Caribana and featuring with MPeople, K. Jones, FFF and Mori Kante to name just a few.

He was the runner-up in "La Nouvelle Star" on the M6 television show, which exposed him widely to the public in 2004. There, he sang "As" from Stevie Wonder in a duet with Amel Bent, which sold over 600'000 records.

In 2005, he worked with Phil Collins who produced Julien's first hit single "Tout nous Rappelle". Phil Collins subsequently selected Julien to sing the French version of the songs on the "Tarzan II" animated movie. Phil Collins said, "I produced Julien Laurence because he is a talented and generous young man. His demos were sent to me and I was amazed, it really is that simple".

In 2007, he produced the album "Jelem" in which he takes us through his own journeys throughout the world. He then also released the albums, "Carousel" (2009), "Only Love" (2010), "C'est comme ça que je t'aime" (2011) and "Je t'attends" (2012). With these albums, he tours regularly in live concerts throughout Canada and Switzerland with his friend Alain Morisod & ses Sweet People.

Far removed from any artifice, Julien forges his way as a musician in his soul. His passions remain fully intact and his music lets us into his magical world.

The French newspaper Libération said: "Julien Laurence is a looker, has style and is profoundly soul. The man is sensitive and talented. He has travelled the world, lived in Eastern Europe with the Gypsies and in Texas. He's a work-horse, in the noble sense of the word".

David Bennett

*Chairman of Jewellery, Europe and Middle East
Chairman, Sotheby's Switzerland*

A leading international authority in the field of precious stones and jewellery, David Bennett was appointed Chairman of Sotheby's Jewellery Department for Europe and the Middle East in 2006 and Chairman of Sotheby's Switzerland in 2011.

Auctioneer for the firm since 1978, David Bennett has orchestrated some of the most important jewellery sales in the last thirty years, including the highest value various owner jewellery auction ever held which totalled $108 million in May 2012. Under his direction, Sotheby's

Geneva set a series of records for white, pink, yellow, blue and green diamonds. David Bennett's most recent successes include the historic sale in November 2010 of the Graff Pink, an extremely rare 24.78 carat Fancy Intense Pink diamond which fetched CHF 45.4 million ($46.2 million), a world record for a diamond and any jewel ever sold at auction. In November 2011, David Bennett presided over the sale of the Sun-Drop Diamond (renamed the "Lady Dalal" by its new owner after his mother) for CHF 11,282,500 ($12,361,558), a world record for a yellow diamond. He also orchestrated the sale of the four most expensive white diamonds in auction history - including the only D-Colour Internally Flawless diamonds weighing more than 100 carats, ever to be sold under the hammer.

Under David Bennett's leadership, Sotheby's Geneva presented for sale jewels of supreme historical importance. In May 2012, the legendary Beau Sancy, one of the most important royal diamonds to ever come to auction, sold for CHF 9,042,500 ($9,699,618), almost five times the pre-sale low estimate of $2-4 million. In May 2011, David Bennett held the hammer for the sale of a magnificent and extremely rare emerald and diamond tiara formerly in the Collection of Princess Katharina Henckel von Donnersmarck which fetched CHF 11.3 million ($12.7 million), the highest price ever achieved for a tiara at auction and a world record for a piece of antique jewellery.

David Bennett's longstanding expertise led him to be closely involved with iconic jewellery collections, such as the legendary "Jewels of the Duchess of Windsor" in 1987, the Princely Collections of Thurn und Taxis in 1992, as well as the collections of Ava Gardner, H.H.

Begum Sultan Mohamed Shah Aga Khan and Maria Callas. David Bennett was instrumental in the launch in 2007 of annual sales dedicated to Noble Jewels in Geneva, which have proven to be extremely successful.

Fellow of the Gemmological Association of Great Britain, David Bennett was presented with the prestigious Antwerp Diamond Career Award of Excellence for 1997 by the Diamond High Council - a price awarded annually to a single influential individual in the diamond trade. He was recently named among the top 300 "most influential persons in Switzerland" by the Swiss financial and business magazine Bilan (June 2011).

David Bennett is also the co-author, with Daniela Mascetti, of the best-selling book Understanding Jewellery - a reference work for professionals and collectors, translated into many languages and re-edited several times since its first appearance in 1989. David Bennett and Daniela Mascetti have also co-written Celebrating Jewellery, a magnificent volume published in October 2012, illustrating some of the greatest and most iconic pieces from the nineteenth and twentieth centuries.

Having graduated from university with a degree in philosophy, David Bennett put his career at Sotheby's on hold from 2001 to 2004 to pursue philosophical studies. Today, in his spare time, he continues to give lectures in philosophy and related fields, as well as consultations in hermetic astrology.

Interpretation on Kandinsky

This colourful abstract painting is the inspiring result of allowing the children at the ASK camps to work together towards a combined creative expression.

The children were first shown images of work by the painter Wassily Kandinsky, and encouraged to look for geometrical shapes in the work as well as discussing colour. Together, they have created a piece of art which is a joint exploration of shape and colour. Big bold circles, expressive splatterings, controlled lines and an experiment of paint mixing can all be seen within the work. As time went on, the children began to explore beyond their own areas, creating a finished piece without boundaries.

Albrecht Schnider - Landscape I, 2011/12*

Begun over two decades ago, Albrecht Schnider's ongoing series of small-format landscape paintings spans almost his entire career. The very first works in these series were painted in Switzerland, during the summer of 1988 when the artist was visiting his family farm in the Alps near Sorenberg. His landscapes have continued to be informed and inspired by these scenes of the mountains in Switzerland, as well as by the traditions of landscape painting in art history, including the German Romantic painter Caspar David Friedrich, among others. He is inspired by pictures of landscapes as well as by nature itself.

Carter - Ascend (with Modern Sculpture), 2011*

Carter's paintings, drawings, sculpture and video work are characterized by his evocative use of layering and collage. Central to Carter's project is an ongoing investigation of portraiture, transformation, and fragmented histories. The artist initially gained recognition for his "anonymous portraits" featured in the 2006 Whitney Biennial; these works explored notions of identity, disguise, and self-portraiture through their clipped images of floating body parts and facial features. More recent works have depicted unoccupied modernist interiors that the artist overlays with gestural brushstrokes and floating figures. These haunted spaces serve, in a way, as portraits of their inhabitants, and investigate experiences of memory and history.

Change a Child's Life: ASK Camp

Making and playing with friends are two things that most children do naturally and are skills that we ordinarily take for granted. Yet for many children with special needs and related learning differences, these two aspects of childhood do not come easily. The effects of specific learning difference may in fact preclude children from interacting appropriately with their peers.

ASK's bilingual camps are staffed one-to-one with trained specialists that are dedicated to offering a haven for children between the ages of 5 and 19 who have special needs or specific learning differences. The camps are designed to encourage participation and to build the self-confidence, self-discovery and sense of accomplishment that these children so desperately seek.

CHF 1,000 = 1 Week of ASK Camp
