Biographies

Mark Chandler, Head of Canadian Fixed Income and Currency Strategy, Royal Bank of Canada Capital Markets
Mark has been following North American and international economics and financial markets for three decades. At RBC Capital Markets, Mark is responsible for providing Canadian debt strategies for domestic and international investors and issuers and, in conjunction with the RBC Economics group, helps to formulate the Bank's interest rate forecast. He provides the Canadian commentary for the Global Rates Strategy Groups' common publications, authors the North American Morning Commentary and is responsible for our weekly publications Canadian Macro Musings and Canada Relative Value Weekly. Mark also comments frequently on economic and financial trends to the media.

Prior to re-joining RBC - having worked as Assistant Chief Economist, Financial Markets, for the Bank in the early 1990s - Mark worked for other Canadian financial institutions and as Chief Canadian Economist and Strategist for Goldman Sachs Canada. Mark holds an Honour's Degree in Economics from the University of Western Ontario and a Masters' Degree in Economics from Queen's University at Kingston.

Calvin Tse, Co-Head of North American G10 FX Strategy, Morgan Stanley
Calvin Tse has been with Morgan Stanley's FX strategy team since 2009 and has since circled the globe, working in New York, London, and Hong Kong. He specializes in the G10 currencies, with a focus also on front-end rates. In early 2014, Calvin relocated to New York to co-head the North America G10 FX strategy group. After just one year in the seat, he and his team were ranked #2 in Institutional Investor's 2015 All-America Fixed Income Research poll. Calvin has degrees in finance and accounting from New York University's Stern School of Business.

Frances Donald, Financial Markets Economist, Scotiabank
Frances Donald is a Financial Markets Economist working with the Economics and Capital Markets groups in Toronto. She focuses on economic data and its relationship to financial markets while advising Global Banking and Markets' institutional and corporate clientele. She produces various thematic studies with a North America and Asia focus. Prior to joining Scotiabank, Frances held research positions at the Bank of Canada, Roubini Global Economics, a global consulting firm and a Montreal-based securities firm. She holds a BA in Economics from Queen's University and an MA in Economics from New York University. She is fluent in French.
